A first in Morocco

MONDAY, 02 MAY 2011

Morocco

Bruno Herriché Country Director, has spoken about the implementation of new trolleys for serving the meals of the patients at the Rabat Ibn Sina Hospital.

“The IBN SINA teaching hospital at Rabat, which is the largest hospital in Morocco -2700 beds- has entrusted us with the catering for an additional 3 years as of the 1st of January 2011.

We fulfilled the specifications outlined in the call for tenders by proposing an innovative system for the distribution of patient’s meals – a double-flow trolley: a heat convection trolley which guarantees the heating and the keeping of hot food, by the constant circulation of hot air in the heating part of the trolley (keeps the temperature at 65°C or above), and the cooling part of the trolley uses a forced-air circulation system so that the food remains perfectly cool (keeps the temperature at 4°C or under) – this unique concept in Morocco allows Newrest Morocco to be at the forefront of it’s business, but mainly to offer public hospital patients a catering service similar to “hotel-restaurants” for the first time.”

Outbreak – enterohemorrhagic E. Coli

MONDAY, 30 MAY 2011

Alert: Spanish cucumbers – outbreak – enterohemorrhagic E. Coli is cause of HUS in Germany

Following the alert sent out by the European Food Safety Alert Network, we would like to provide you with some information on measures taken by Newrest in response to this issue.

Measures taken in France :

German public health authorities have announced a major ongoing epidemic of verotoxin-producing Escherichia coli (VTEC) in Germany.

On Thursday, May 26, the European Commission sent out two alert notifications via the EU’s Rapid Alert System for Food and Feed. This alert refers specifically to two batches of cucumbers imported from Spain.

In France, there are currently three possible cases under investigation in connection with the German epidemic, but no cases have been identified in connection with the specific batches.

Alert levels have been stepped up in cooperation with the Institut de veille sanitaire (the French public health watch institute). Healthcare professionals have also been made aware of the situation so they can detect and declare possible cases in France.

Measures taken by Newrest :

Newrest has taken this bacteriological threat from raw vegetables into account in its health and safety plan by always...

1- Guaranteeing that our fruits and vegetables are safe to consume thanks to a network of distributors and suppliers, all vetted and audited by our Procurement and Quality Management offices. Ever since the alert went out, our network has checked and ensured that current supply is not coming from producers involved in the outbreak. In the event of doubt concerning a product or its origin, safety will come first and the product will be removed from distribution in accordance with our “crisis management” guidelines.

2- Checking product origins upon receipt: Each shipment undergoes thorough verification upon receipt. Our Supply Department checks the labels and origin of each product.

3- Pre-treating raw plant materials: All raw fruits and vegetables are decontaminated by soaking at least 5 minutes in water mixed with bleach and 80 ppm active chlorine. This operation is very effective in destroying microbial flora present on the surface of food products.

4- Respecting proper professional health and safety practices: On a day-to-day basis, the risk of cross-contamination is significantly reduced by thorough hand-washing (after touching raw vegetables) and the cleaning/disinfection of work surfaces that have come in contact with raw food.

Lastly, Newrest’s Quality Management department is informed in real-time of local and European health alerts via an epidemiological watch system operated in direct cooperation with departmental Civil Protection services. In the event of an emergency, a pre-defined crisis management protocol is activated to coordinate necessary measures and ensure the safety of food products and the health of consumers at all times.

Newrest Wagons-Lits in Russia

TUESDAY, 07 JUNE 2011

Newrest Sleepers will soon be expanding into Russia thanks to contracts awarded by Russian Railways (RJD), in local partnership with Eurasia Center – one of the biggest railway catering operators in Russia, serving about 300 trains a day.

Until now, the Russian market has been devoid of foreign operators. This Joint Venture makes Newrest the first railway catering business coming from outside the country to start operating in the Russian Federation. Beginning in July, this groundbreaking Joint Venture will manage approximately 50 bar and restaurant cars, pursuing the clear objectives laid out by RJD in terms of management and the sharing of expertise.

This 3-year renewable contract represents Newrest’s first expansion into Russia and means considerable development potential for all our areas of professional activity.

The Joint Venture managed by Newrest Wagons Lits will be directed by Jérôme Chêne, General Manager, Elenie Federova, Onboard Services Manager, and by Olivier Couteau, Project Manager. Current recruitment policy provides for a predominantly Russian staff.

The trains on which we will operate serve national destinations such as Saint-Petersburg and Samara, as well as international ones like Sofia, Kiev, Warsaw, Berlin, and Beijing (via the trans-Siberian line from Moscow).

The Joint Venture predicts a turnover of approximately 5 million Euros after the first year. Major challenges will be how best to organize logistics and Onboard Services, implement European management standards, and significantly improve our quality of service, all while successfully adapting to Russian culture.

Distribution of sweet snacks at the Gare de l'Est by Newrest Wagons-Lits

FRIDAY, 01 JULY 2011

To celebrate the beginning of the holidays, the Newrest Wagons-Lits team organised a large distribution of sweet snacks to young travellers of the TGV Est. Concerned with treating the children with products adapted to their age, Newrest Wagons-Lits created a delicious and balanced menu, made up of a bag of soft apricots, a fruit juice and a pastry. So that both kids and grown-ups have a pleasant trip, Newrest Wagons-Lits also included a fun paper cutting on the theme of trains in their gift baskets.

Once the sweet snacks were freshly packed at the Orly production centre, the installations were set up to greet all the travellers by late morning.

From 1 pm onwards the children invaded the platforms of the Gare de l'Est in Paris to fetch their basket, much to the satisfaction of their parents.

The project was successful and all the travellers were delighted to benefit from such an initiative.

Une fois les gouters fraîchement emballés depuis l'unité de production d'Orly, toutes les installations étaient prêtes en fin de matinée pour accueillir l'ensemble des voyageurs.

A partir de 13h les enfants ont prit d'assaut les quais de la gare de l'Est à Paris pour venir chercher leur bourse pour le plus grand bonheur de leurs parents.

L'opération a été un succès et l'ensemble des voyageurs a été ravi de pouvoir profiter d'une telle initiative.

Newrest Niger

THURSDAY, 22 SEPTEMBER 2011

Twelve months after having signed the contract to manage Areva's food services and accommodation activities in Niger, the projects completed by the Newrest Niger team have allowed us to identify the changes in our clients' needs, in particular in the remote site of Imouraren.

Help was provided to local suppliers of fruits and vegetables (financing of a refrigerated truck, advances to suppliers to help launch production, technical assistance, etc.) so that local businesses could be supported to the greatest extent possible.

Also, the launch of a continuous training program (led by managers from our subsidiaries in Morocco, Tunisia, France, etc.) will allow us to rapidly train our new Nigerois employees on service quality and hygiene.

As logistics are a major concern (2,200 km between the closest port and the site), long-term partnerships have been established with transport companies to ensure compliance with delivery deadlines and the health and safety standards that apply in this field.

Newrest Niger has thereby confirmed its intent to participate in the country's economy and turn this project into a symbol of successful sustainable development.
