FRIDAY, 13 FEBRUARY 2015

Based on the proverb – ‘You are what you eat’, Waleed Catering & Services Co. LLC (Newrest Wacasco), one of Oman’s major catering players, developed and successfully launched on 2nd of February, 2015, its own healthy educational program. This will be deployed within their 105 operated sites and will target their 1,600 employees and 48,000 meals served daily.

The launch of the Healthy Living Campaign was attended by the Director of the Nutritional Department for the Ministry of Health, Dr. Samia Al Ghannami, who expressed a strong support to such corporate social initiative.

The objective of this campaign is to educate as many people as possible and promote the welfare of the clients and staff onsite. This program is jointly sponsored by Oman Refreshment Company and Burjeel Medical Center.

At the beginning of the ceremony, the campaign’s mascots, Linda and Marcel, welcomed the guests and invited Ms. Aurelie Gueguen, Newrest Wacasco’s General Manager and Mr. Youssef Ezzikhe, Oman Refreshment Company’s General Manager, to cut together the launching ribbon.

During her opening speech which was based on one of the Ministry of Health’s case studies, Mrs. Aurelie Gueguen, declared: “In the sultanate of Oman, there is a worrying increasing trend with overweight, obesity, high blood pressure, and cardiovascular diseases. This is mainly due to the rapid economic and social development of the country causing changes of local food habits and an increase of sedentary activity”.

“Facing this situation and as a responsible company, Newrest Wacasco decided to initiate a nutritional awareness campaign to educate its employees, clients and local community members across Oman about how to live a healthy life”, Mrs. Gueguen added. This program is simultaneously deployed in other 45 operating countries of Newrest Group and part of corporate commitment.

Following her discourse, Ms. Marie Chatelier, a dietician nutritionist working in Newrest Wacasco’s operations department, detailed the content of this 10-month project. In order to sustain the healthier lifestyle approach, 5 main topics will be covered, i.e. sports, nutrition, sedentary lifestyle, healthier eating and heart-care. Each of these topics will be brought to life by organizing activities and competition with winning prizes. After introducing the campaign, all the guests were invited for tasting healthy snacks based on light gourmet recipes. Along with this event, Burjeel Medical Center made available a medical stand for screening the blood pressure, the glucose blood level and the body mass index for the invitees. Such health screening stands will be again provided by the Medical Center throughout the campaign period.

Newrest is committed to constant improvement and innovation for its clients, a sustainable and durable development of the company as well as its standards and its environment, respecting social and environmental values in all of its activities. In line with this, Newrest Wacasco is convinced that the Healthy Living Campaign deployment over the next 10 months will be highly contributing to any of their clients, staff and local community members.

The launching of the Newrest/Matmut ship

FRIDAY, 03 JULY 2015

The 60-foot Newrest–Matmut ready to rise to the challenge

It was a real high point for Fabrice Amedeo and his team. The 60-foot monohull, Newrest–Matmut, was put back in the water yesterday afternoon in Lorient after undergoing a major overhaul. The team did not totally remodel the ship, which was once sailed by Loick Peyron and after by Jean Le Cam. Instead, all work focused on the boat's vital points; several elements of the onboard electronics and the keel hydraulics were disassembled, inspected and then reinstalled.

During this project, the skipper/journalist worked diligently to secure secondary and technical partners to support him in the “Everest” of ocean racing and in his intensive physical preparation program, under the guidance of his coach.

The project can now enter training mode. Fabrice Amedeo will be learning all the subtleties of sailing the 60 foot boat, clocking up as many miles as he can from the boat's home port of Trinité sur Mer. He will also navigate a series of voyages with his co-skipper for the soon-to-be announced Transat Jacques Vabre.

"We've just entered another important phase," said a pleased Fabrice Amedeo. "The Newrest–Matmut team worked hard to ensure the deadlines were respected, with the boat being launched in early July as scheduled. A real team spirit has developed around this boat and the challenge we are facing together. I can now get out there and sail, discover the boat, gain experience, and in so doing build up my confidence. Let the adventure begin! I have been preparing for this for a long time, and I have been giving it my all, spending all my time working towards this ambitious sporting goal."

The Reporters du Large project explained by Fabrice Amedeo

"Reporters du Large [Reporters at Sea] came out of the idea that ocean racing is a top class sport, but also an adventure, a voyage with an editorial dimension that can inspire the general public. Above all, my athletic ambitions are what motivate me to do this sport, and I prepare for these races with the same discipline as any elite athlete. This is a huge challenge that forces me to reconcile my landlocked life as a journalist in Paris. But I am equally motivated by a strong desire to cover the race from the inside and to share my experience with the general public, telling them about the competition, life on board, strange encounters, nature... The public's strong fascination with ocean racing is evident when you see just how many people gather every four years along the harbour entrance channel in les Sables d'Olonne for the start of the Vendée Globe, or that flock to the ramparts of the corsair city and to Cap Fréhel for the start of the Route du Rhum. It is not so much the race itself, but the adventure, the fact that we push back the boundaries while coming into contact with nature and the elements, and that makes us all dream. After more than 20,000 miles of racing in three years, and coming in ninth at the last Route de Rhum, I feel ready for the biggest challenge of my life: to be at the starting line of the Vendée Globe 2016. A new chapter is beginning with a bigger team, a new boat, new partners. Together we shall write a new page in the history of ocean racing, in contact with the world's leading sailors, while at the same time wishing to share with you the magic we find out on the water."

Fabrice Amedeo and Eric Peron team up for the Transat Jacques Vabre

TUESDAY, 07 JULY 2015

Fabrice Amedeo, the skipper of the 60-foot Newrest – Matmut monohull, teams up with Eric Peron for the Transat Jacques Vabre. Eric Peron, who recently finished third with the Dongfeng Race Team during the Volvo Ocean Race, will start training with Fabrice in August before this transatlantic race between Le Havre and Itajai (departure on October 25th).

Fabrice Amedeo, the skipper of the 60-foot Newrest – Matmut monohull, teams up with Eric Peron for the Transat Jacques Vabre. Eric Peron, who recently finished third with the Dongfeng Race Team during the Volvo Ocean Race, will start training with Fabrice in August before this transatlantic race between Le Havre and Itajai (departure on October 25th).

Fabrice Amedeo selected Eric Peron as his co-skipper for the Transat Jacques Vabre. The navigator from Brittany has charted a number of performances these past two years, whether in Olympic Sailing, Figaro Bénéteau 2 or round-the-world race. His extensive experience in ocean-sea racing is a precious asset for the skipper/journalist who has never really sailed on a 60-foot monohull. In July, Fabrice and his team will be discovering their new boat while, Eric, who has just returned from his challenging crewed round-the-world race, will be getting some well-deserved rest. Early August, both sailors will meet at Trinité-sur-Mer to alternate technical bay and offshore sailing before the final countdown in 2015.

Fabrice Amedeo: “I am very happy to have Eric Peron onboard Newrest – Matmut for the Transat Jacques Vabre. Though we met on several occasions during races and enjoyed each other’s company, we have never sailed together before this adventure. Complicity between sailors is key to success both on and off sea. I am convinced we both have what it takes to win this race. Eric is very talented and his insight on electronics and sailing techniques will definitely help. Eric is also a great communicator, he always has a story to tell, this makes him the ideal partner for this Transat!”

Eric Peron: “After nine months of training around the globe, I am honored to pair with Fabrice for the Transat Jacques Vabre. I remember when he first suggested teaming up, I said yes without hesitating. It is not every day that you have the opportunity to sail with someone you are on the same page with. Because I am also thinking of the Vendée Globe, this is a great opportunity to test a 60-foot Imoca monohull”

D-4 before the Transat Jacques Vabre

THURSDAY, 22 OCTOBER 2015

With the start of the 12th edition of the Transat Jacques Vabre fast approaching on Sunday, Fabrice Amedeo (Newrest-Matmut) moved one stage further in his bid to conquer the Mount Everest of the sailing world, the Vendée Globe 2016. For his first transatlantic race in an Imoca, the boat of choice for transoceanic sailing, Fabrice will race alongside notable professional Eric Péron from the Finistère region. Both men have had strikingly different sailing experiences, but have found essential common ground to share the adventure between Normandy and Brazil, with just the right balance between apprenticeship and sporting effort. After crossing the Atlantic 7 times, and for this his second participation in the Transat Jacques Vabre, Amedeo is thrilled to try his hand at Imoca-class racing, conscious of the hierarchy required for the boats involved. But his drive for success is greater than ever, and his eyes will be steadfast on the horizon in this, one of his most decisive races to date.

Newrest-Matmut off to a great start

Fabrice Amedeo and Eric Péron, had the best performance of the entire fleet of the 12th edition of the Transat Jacques Vabre. The wind was especially light, but the sun was out in all its glory as the pair managed to find the wind they needed to reach the outposts and take the lead in their single hull vessel. Just after 5 pm, Fabrice and Eric were in third place in the IMOCA category, passing the Etretat marker. The winners of the Transat Jacques Fabre 2015 have jumped off to a wonderful start, crossing the Atlantic on the way to Brazil.

A "taste workshop" in Algeria

THURSDAY, 29 OCTOBER 2015

The senses awaken!

During the "Semaine du Goût" tasting week, children at the Petite Ecole d'Hydra (PEH) school in Algiers participated in the "taste workshop" organised by the team at Newrest Algeria.

Transat: like and like again

THURSDAY, 29 OCTOBER 2015

Everything is fine on board this Thursday morning. The Newrest/Matmut ranks ninth, and the skippers are determined not to push the boat's limits just for show. No risks of incurring damage will be taken as the Transat is just a training session for the Vendée Globe.

Others are not faring as well. Six have already abandoned the race, and Hugo Boss is on its way to the port of Vigo for repairs (and worse even, if there is too much damage). The Bateau des Métiers is returning to Sables d'Olonne for the same reasons.

Don't forget to check out the skippers' news on Reporters du Large and, especially, to massively "like" to encourage Fabrice Amedeo and his teammate to send news (by clicking on the small heart under the various photos).

VALE NC entrusts Newrest with managing its remote site for the Grand-Sud factory in New Caledonia

VALE New Caledonia (VALE NC) selected Newrest to manage its accommodation and catering services on their nickel-cobalt production complex at the Grand-Sud factory.

The Vale New Caledonia industrial complex has a surface area of 19 hectares and includes an open-air mine and an ore-processing plant. Production is rising steadily, and should reach 57,000 tons of nickel oxide and 4,500 tons of cobalt carbonate in the long term. To successfully complete these operations, Vale NC has a little over 3,000 employees, including 1,400 direct employees and 70 subcontractor companies. Newrest will provide services at the remote site and satellite structures for the Grand-Sud factory – a total of 1,000,000 meals and some 300,000 overnight stays per year.

This is a world class project, one of the biggest investments in France, after the Flamanville EPR in the Manche region and the microelectronics investment by STMicroelectronics and various partners of Crolles in the Isère region.

VALE NC meets the highest standards in terms of health and safety, sustainable development and industrial safety, while helping create sustainable wealth in New Caledonia. With Newrest, this company has found a partner that shares its values and commitments. The VALE Group has thus decided to continue the collaboration already initiated with the Newrest group in the Sultanate of Oman, where close to 450 people have been served at the Sohar site's restaurant since 2011.

VALE NC has been receptive to the economic, social and community commitments presented in Newrest's proposal, seeking to carry out substantive work with the communities close to the site. The majority of purchases will thus be made locally, sub-contractors will be selected from communities and the local staff currently on-site will be maintained.

Upon the signing of the contract, Olivier Sadran, co-President of the Newrest Group declared: "I'm thrilled about this new contract, which will allow the Group to establish itself in New Caledonia and thus continue our development in the overseas territories. Newrest is already operating in French Polynesia."

Transat Jacques Vabre - Day 18

THURSDAY, 12 NOVEMBER 2015

Newrest is once again in 8th position, and is holding steady. The race is becoming closer between the three boats after considerably wide gaps during the day yesterday. At 2 pm today, a mere ½ nm separated Newrest from Bureau Vallée following closely behind. Just one boat was ahead of them by 21 nm.

With the winds as they were, average speeds dropped from 12 nds to 6 or 7 nds. But this was expected. If conditions remain the same, arrival at Itajaï is plausible tomorrow in the middle of the afternoon (Paris time). But which boat will pull in first? Suspense!

In the news this morning, on the Reporters du Large website, Fabrice Amedeo was confident:

Estimated time of arrival: Friday at noon

"We're not tired at all", says Fabrice Amedeo, a few hours before arriving in Itajaï, the end of a rough racing stretch of about 5,400 nautical miles. "We had our highs and lows in this race, after a great start, we did a good job of getting round two huge depressions in the Gulf of Gascogne. A lot of other boats fell victim to those. With that boost in confidence, I think we subconsciously eased up a little, maybe too much. But our "Pack of four" with MASC, Comme un seul homme and Bureau Vallée put us back into the swing of things and we're back in full race mode. We put up a good fight, and this Transat will be a success for us if we manage to keep 8th place ahead of Bureau Vallée." This is the first imoca 60 Transat for Fabrice, and his co-skipper Jacques Vabre has completely fulfilled his promises and objectives. "I feel like a runner able to able to manage this boat single-handedly. I feel like it's made for a novice like me; it's really robust and well-designed with this "hood" protecting the cockpit. We'll make it even more water-tight. And there's this ergonomic interior living space, that's absolutely perfect for resting and doing our mapwork..." (See photo below for the "hood").

Positions on 12 November at 2 pm
(ahead of Initiative Cœur, and Souffle du Nord est by 5 nm (9.2 km) from the finish)

The "hood"

Fabrice spoke about it several times to emphasize how much it added to the skippers' comfort. Under the cabin "roof" (indicated by red rectangle on photo) with one part of it in plexiglass, we can see a "mini roof". This "mini roof" slides out in the direction of the red arrow to cover the cockpit: It's this "mini roof" that the sailors call the "hood". It protects them from the sun but especially the rain and wind when they're in the cockpit.

Newrest Peru & Banco de la Nación

FRIDAY, 13 NOVEMBER 2015

On Monday 9 November, the contract between Newrest Peru and Banco de la Nación became effective. Newrest Peru began providing services to two La Banco de la Nación sites in Lima for a total of approximately 450 meals a day.

In the year 2016, both sites will be housed in the brand new Banco de la Nación building, where the IMF meeting was held in Lima last October. This new building is located right next to the Culture Ministry, where Newrest's Peruvian subsidiary already provides its services.

Transat Jacques Vabre: home straight

FRIDAY, 13 NOVEMBER 2015

Fabrice Amedeo and Eric Péron 8th at Itajaí

MONDAY, 16 NOVEMBER 2015

The 12th edition of the Transat Jacques Vabre Imoca boat race came to a close with Newrest-Matmut arriving just before 7 pm, in 8th place in its category. Of the 20 boats that lined up at the start on October 25th, only 9 managed to overcome the innumerable difficulties encountered over the 5,400 nautical miles of the race. Although they battled until the last stretch to beat the Bureau Vallée duo of Burton and Attanasio, by earning 8th place with just 3 minutes and 37 seconds of a lead, Amedeo and Péron will certainly come away with wonderful memories of their first major Imoca 60 race. Both men complemented one another remarkably; Péron with his vast experience, and Amedeo ever so willing to share his desire to win and take the lead. Enriched by this fabulous adventure, Fabrice Amedeo already has his sights set upon Saint-Barth and the start of the return race towards Port la Forêt, scheduled for December 6th, a new race against the elements before the one-year deadline of the Vendée Globe.

A final filled with suspense

"We are thrilled that we beat Bureau Vallée after the last 24 hours. Our 8th position was decided in 3 minutes!" admitted Fabrice Amedeo after pulling in at Itajaí. "We fought head to head with that boat and it had the same Farr signature as ours. It was our own exciting mini race from the coast of Brazil. The final, after over 10 000 km, was stunning because only a dozen or so meters separated us at the finish! Our little edge on the coast around Cap Frio hurt us a bit though. We also suffered a little with two small hiccups that really slowed us down, first when had to dive under the keel to remove a net that was floating there, then we had to get our Gennaker because the halyard was broken." Eric Péron also took immense pleasure in the close race for the last few nautical miles. "It's nice to end up such a long race in "match mode" with a boat so similar to ours."

A grueling event

Fabrice Amedeo and Eric Péron embarked on the Transat Jacques Fabre adventure and its 5,400 miles of ocean and unsure weather with a humble attitude. For both skippers, it was the first time crossing the Atlantic on board an Imoca vessel, support class of the Vendée Globe. Stormy weather during the first days, with the severe autumn depressions that knocked out half the fleet coming out of the Channel, made this a real test for the men, their sailor reflexes, mental resources and for the boat, which took quite a beating in the 6-7 meter troughs, and in the often contrary winds of over 45 knots. Fabrice and Eric braved it all and sailed on like true skippers. They were almost surprised themselves to discover the robustness of their Newrest-Matmut; "We went inside and waited for two windstorms to pass. The boat was taking a beating, but we could do nothing but wait it out," recalls Fabrice. The two men emerged along the Azores in the "right group": those who went far west to avoid the depression and in the leading pack. "We saw more and more boats fall victim and we really focused on our trajectory." Perhaps slower than new-generation sailboats, but also certainly less on the attack, Fabrice and Eric had only one objective: arrive at Itajaí. A goal shared by other competitors. From the Canary Islands marker, Newrest-Matmut was a part of the "pack of four", with three other sailboats of the same generation, survivors of the merciless wipeout during the first week of racing. MACSF (De Broc-Guillemot), Comme un seul homme (Bellion-Goodchild) and Bureau Vallée (Burton-Attanasio) were to be in each other's sights until the end of the race.

Tradewinds, spindrifts, sunsets... memories to last a lifetime.

A long slide south began off the Cap Vert, with relative monotony portside, broken only by a doldrum episode, particularly mild for the four boats. "The tradewinds made their presence felt" continued Fabrice, and the dip towards Brazil was the most enjoyable part of the race. We saw some amazing sunsets, and Eric and I enjoyed chatting and sharing these moments while we had dinner." Arriving on the Brazilian coasts was less enjoyable however, for the Newrest-Matmut team. The foursome held a tight pack, ending in a long match-race with Bureau Vallée. "We thought the last 1,500 miles would never end" said Eric Péron. Straight ahead in the eastern tradewind we were sailing in a sort of corridor with no other option in sight." The two skippers focused on the adjustments, continually searching for that last inch of a knot that could make a long-term difference. As explained earlier, the arrival at Cap Frio was hardly welcoming for Newrest Matmut which was outstripped by its adversary before taking back the lead...

Looking ahead...

"We fought till the very end in this enormous bay of Rio, and I think we fulfilled our promise. We're bringing a boat in good condition to Itajaí, after all these unique and enriching experiences." explains Amedeo. "Eric was the perfect professional; patient and calm just as I expected. I've made so much progress. I feel fully confident to continue this adventure; I feel it's my destiny, to sail around the world in this boat. It's made for me and the ergonomics are wonderfully designed. The "strong box" is reassuring." Eric Péron added another notch to his sailing belt. "I love the Imoca 60s more than ever now. They're demanding, and tough on skippers, but fantastic to sail."

Here's what they had to say:

Olivier Sadran, Co-Président of Newrest: "On behalf of the Newrest Group, I salute the amazing performance of Fabrice Amedeo and Eric Péron in this incredibly selective race. They made magnificent progress and we stand proudly with them as they cross the finish. In every country where our Group is present, numerous collaborators have closely followed the progress of the Imoca Newrest-Matmut boat. I hope all the "likes" and messages they received helped boost their spirits and encourage them. They have so many fans here at Newrest! Fabrice and Eric allowed us to live extreme moments of emotion and excitement vicariously through their exploits. On behalf of Newrest, I thank them ever so warmly."

Daniel Havis, President of Matmut: "On behalf of all Matmut Group collaborators, I say well done and thank you to Fabrice Amedeo and Eric Péron. Well done, because their enthusiasm, talent and determination allowed them to rise to the challenge of the Transat Jacques Vabre. And thank you, because all of us at Matmut were in a way able to "climb on board" the Newrest-Matmut boat and live the magnificent human adventure of this race. Thanks to the many videos and posts, we fully enjoyed these weeks of racing. We're looking forward to the next challenge for the Newrest-Matmut sailboat!"

WEDNESDAY, 7 DECEMBER 2015

With over 150 Heads of States visiting Paris for the opening session of the COP 21, our Parisian catering units had the honor to serve over 30 Presidential flights within 48 hours. It was an extremely busy weekend for Newrest's team in Paris, which was supported by other Newrest employees coming from our units in Lyon, Toulouse and Nice.

This operation required a lot of organization, flexibility and reactivity by our teams across France, not only in terms of cooking but also in terms of logistics as aircrafts were parked in several different airports across the country : one presidential flight even getting catering loaded as far out as Lyon. Regular catering operations continued as usual without any disruptions to our commercial customers.

Some of the distinguished visitors that trusted their Presidential catering to Newrest France include: Azerbaijan, Brazil, Burkina Faso, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Equatorial Guinea, Finland, Ghana, India, Iraq, Kazakhstan, Kirgizstan, Kuwait, Mali, Mauritania, Mexico, Niger, Oman, Pakistan, Peru, Poland, Qatar, Russian Federation, Saudi Arabia, Sweden, Chad, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, Ukraine, Zimbabwe, ... We are proud of this milestone and we congratulate our French team.

A new race for Newrest-Matmut

MONDAY, 07 DECEMBER 2015

There's not much to report ahead of the finish line of the St Barts-Port La Forêt Transat, the Vendée Globe 2016 qualifier in which Frédéric Amedeo is competing on the IMOCA Newrest-Matmut. There is no official website to follow the competitors as there was for the Jacques Vabre, which means we have no way of finding out the ranking in real time. Fabrice is expected to arrive between 16 and 18 December.

Here is what we found this morning on the website's «news» page:

At 4 pm (Paris time), 11 am in St Barts, 6 of the 7 IMOCA60 skippers in the St Barts/Port-La-Forêt Transat set off on their qualifying race for the Vendée Globe. The Irish skipper Enda O'Coineen (Currency House Kilcullen) has had to delay its departure due to technical issues. The rest of the fleet are currently heading north, under a strong trade-wind regime.

You don't need the sun to put on a show! IMOCA60 put on a great show this afternoon, under a cloudy sky off the island of St Barts. Paul Meilhat (SMA) was the first to cross the line, closely followed by Sébastien Josse (Edmond de Rothschild) and Thomas Ruyant (Le Souffle du Nord).

Slightly concerned but 100% focused, all the competitors in the Transat St Barts/Port-La-Forêt (except for Sébastien Josse) set off on their very first IMOCA60 solo transat at 15-16 knots on high seas.

A race to get ahead

In the next 24-36 hours, the solo competitors will attempt to make headway north in a constant 17-20 knots Easterly airstream, in order to leave the trade-wind regime and embark on the series of depressions that sweep from west to east in the North Atlantic. Their strategy will involve positioning themselves ahead of these weather systems to make the most of preceding airstreams.

A race within a race

The technical team of the Irish skipper Enda O'Coineen (Currency House Kilcullen) discovered engine problems yesterday. They are carrying out the necessary repairs as quickly as possible so that the skipper can set off within the next 12-24 hours (the regime is open for 5 days). This means it's a race against time for Enda O'Coineen, whose main objective is to qualify for the Vendée Globe like all the competitors taking part in the St Barts/Port-La-Forêt Transat.

Rankings as the fleet passed Cape Forchu, the first and last race mark before the finish line

1. Paul Meilhat – SMA
2. Sébastien Josse - Edmond de Rothschild
3. Thomas Ruyant - Le Souffle du Nord
4. Morgan Lagravière – Safran
- 5. Fabrice Amedeo - Newrest-Matmut
6. Éric Holden - O Canada
7. Enda O'Coineen - Currency House Kilcullen

Another contract with Sinopec

The Chinese giant, Sinopec, has once more opened its doors to Newrest, and this time, in Oman.

Located near the Omani-Saudi borders, this operation shall entail drastic logistics measures and the mobilization of some 20 culinary & hospitality professionals.

Jazz Charity Event in Canada

MONDAY, 07 DECEMBER 2015

The Jazz Santa flight has become a Christmas tradition over the past years in several of Jazz hubs – this is the second year in a row it has been organized by the Jazz team in Toronto. Jazz team organized a day full of activities and surprises for sick and underprivileged children registered with the Toronto Ronald McDonald House Charities. The highlight of the event was a 45-minute flight over the city of Toronto in search of Santa. This was a very special day for many of the children as this was the first time they experienced flying.

It was with great pleasure for Newrest Toronto to participate by donating all food and beverage requirements for the morning brief, during flight, and lunch service, including SPML requirements for some of the children. The event organizers have shared their gratitude and very positive feedback of the meals provided - especially the child friendly options. We are grateful to have been able to take part of this event and help put a smile on the children's faces during the holidays.

Newrest in Peru and Transportes Cruz del Sur

Newrest in Peru has created a new line of business, providing catering for bus passengers on a daily basis. A first for the Group, Peru is actually the only country where Newrest provides this service.

Our new client, Transportes Cruz del Sur, charts over 70 buses every day departing from Lima. This is equivalent to between 2000 and 2500 covers a day, depending on the number of passengers. The catering service is adapted according to the departure time, bus type, journey length and final destination.

Every bus is equipped with an oven for re-heating and is managed by a team of three people (oven operator/stewardess).

To stay one step ahead of all operations, Newrest in Peru has provided a facility for assembly in situ.

A sharp increase in volumes is expected between 15 December and 15 March as this is when the school summer holidays take place.

Newrest France searches for Santa Claus

WEDNESDAY, 16 DECEMBER 2015

On 9 December, the first edition in France of the «Flight in Search of Santa Claus» event was held, organised by Air Transat with the Association Petits Princes and Aéroports de Paris. This major première in France allowed 50 young children and their families to fly to the North Pole to look for Santa Claus, who joined them on board an Air Transat Airbus A330 once his sled landed on the airplane while in the skies.

This exceptional day started at the Air Transat check-in counter at the Paris-Charles de Gaulle Terminal 3 airport when the children and their families were handed their boarding passes to fly to the North Pole. They were then directed to the boarding gate, where a number of festive activities awaited them, along with a snack offered by Newrest France CDG's teams.

The young and not-so-young then boarded Air Transat's airplane for a 90-minute flight, during which the children sang Christmas carols to attract Santa Claus. He rapidly heard their call. After landing his sled on the left wing of the airplane, he came on board to hug the children, wish them a merry Christmas and hand out a few gifts. Every face wore a smile. The young princes and princesses brought Santa Claus back with them to the airport for a souvenir photo before letting him fly away to deliver his gifts. During the flight, all of the guests were treated to sweet and savoury snacks that Newrest France CDG was pleased to offer these North Pole explorers, enchanted by their journey.

Newrest France CDG's teams were delighted to participate in an event that makes the dream of 50 young princes and princesses come true thanks to Air Transat and the Association Petits Princes.

D+10 Transat St Barth - Port la Forêt

THURSDAY, 17 DECEMBER 2015

Newrest-Matmut is still second after the official surrender of SMA. Its pace is regular: 14.1 nds since 24h and 16.8 nds for 1 hour (at 5 am in Paris time). If everything goes well, he will finish second, after a race that will have astonished everyone. But there are all kinds of unforeseen events (wounds, mechanical problems, etc.), weather hazards, the dangerous danger of the OFNIs and entry into an area frequented by cargo ships. If you plan on an average speed of 12 knots, a Saturday arrival seems possible.

Fabrice Amedeo Places Second at the Transat Saint-Barth / Port La Forêt

MONDAY, 21 DECEMBER 2015

Fabrice Amedeo finished the Transat Saint-Barth / Port La Forêt securing second place in 12 days 23 hours 57 minutes and 42 seconds at an average speed of 10.82 knots. Aboard his monohull Newrest-Matmut and for his first transatlantic crossing singlehanded and in race format on such a big yacht, the skipper – journalist posts a stunning performance. This achievement is heightened by the fact that on Monday 14 December, after a well-controlled race, the amateur sailor suffered significant technical issues due to his starboard rudder disintegrating.

Eighth in the Transat Jacques Vabre with Eric Péron, and second to Sébastien Josse in this transatlantic race between the West Indies and Brittany, Fabrice Amedeo has qualified for the next Vendée Globe, the start of which will take place on 6 November 2016.

Originally from the town of Segré, western France, the sailor is continuing on what is proving to be a steep learning curve on the 60-footer. Still a journalist in Paris a few months ago and after relentless work over recent weeks to train up and consolidate his Imoca project, Fabrice finishes 2015 with one absolute certainty: his ability to follow through on his dream to participate in the solo Round the World race, without stopovers and without assistance. Shortly before crossing the finish line, Fabrice writes...

Hello everyone,

In a few minutes, I'll have completed the Transat Saint Barth – Port la Forêt in second place and, in so doing, validated my qualification for the Vendée Globe 2016.

In these last moments of racing, forgotten is the pulled out rudder, which has hampered my progress towards the finish and forced Newrest–Matmut to sail flat for several hundred miles. Forgotten are the broaches caused by my rudder stump. Forgotten is the front that rolled through with 50 knots on Wednesday morning that I hadn't expected to be so powerful. Forgotten are the boat's cuts and bruises. Forgotten are the doubts and the fears. An invisible force in me is giving vent to an inexpressible happiness. "We've done it!" Back in May, I'd never set foot on a 60-foot IMOCA. Setting sail from Saint Barth two weeks ago, the only solo experience I had to my credit on my big boat was one delivery trip between La Trinité sur Mer and Lorient. Over the 3,400 miles of racing, all the manoeuvres aboard were a first in solo configuration for me: my first gennaker hoist, my first A5 spinnaker hoist, my first gybe at night, my first low and first gale, my first repair assisted by my team over the telephone. Ten years ago, I participated in a weekend of winter training in La Trinité sur Mer and every year I raced the Fastnet with my father and a group of mates. I dreamed of the Vendée Globe as something impossible. Eight months ago, I still had a full-time office job in Paris. Right now, I'm completing a solo transatlantic race in winter on an Imoca!

Passion, determination and tenacity are my weapons and they are so effective. In my cabin, there's a big sticker with a quote from Muhammad Ali. It grabs my attention and each and every day reminds me of the direction of the road I've chosen to follow. "Impossible is just a big word thrown around by small men who find it easier to live in the world they've been given than to explore the power they have to change it. Impossible is not a fact. It's an opinion. Impossible is not a declaration. It's a dare. Impossible is potential. Impossible is temporary. Impossible is nothing."

My personal impossible was, one day, to race in the Vendée Globe. Impossible is nothing: we will be at the start next year, the main ambition for which will be to follow this personal Everest through to its conclusion. I will take you there, where I have never been and where you will probably never go: into the Deep South, the Indian Ocean, Cape Horn. On the toughest seas on the globe. And throughout the miles of racing, the doubts, the troubles and the fears, a little voice will resonate within me and will remind that "Impossible is nothing".

Thank you all for your support, thank you to my partners and thank you to my shore crew. It's a victory for us to have crossed the Atlantic twice, in race configuration, in such a short space of time, not to mention the delivery trip between Itajai and St Barth. See you in 2016 for some new adventures...
